

Confucian Studies Summer Institute

July 1-30, 2017

Nishan & Qufu, Shandong Province, China

The 2017 Nishan Confucian Studies Summer Institute International Program offers teachers of Chinese history and culture an opportunity to spend a month at an established Confucian academy reading the Confucian classics with world-renowned experts Roger T. Ames and Chenshan Tian and other distinguished comparative philosophy and Confucian scholars. We invite all of those students and teachers who are intrigued by Chinese culture who seek a more profound appreciation of Chinese philosophy, history, and cosmology to join us on this unique educational and research journey.

Since 2011, this annual gathering has attracted the brightest teachers and the most committed students from around the world. In organizing the forthcoming Institute scheduled for the month of July, 2017, we again welcome international participants to read the Chinese classics at Nishan, as well as at the Qufu Chinese Confucius Research Institute.

Some scholarships are available to cover some of the costs of your participation. This program is sponsored by Confucius Research Institute and International Confucian Association.

Instructors: Roger T. Ames (Peking), Tian Chenshan (Beijing Foreign Studies University), Robin Wang (Loyola Marymount), Daniel Bell (Tsinghua), Hans-George Moeller (Macau), James Behuniak (Colby), David Bartosch (Beijing Foreign Studies University), Ian Sullivan (Kennesaw State)

Languages: English

Admission Fee: $3000 including tuition, meals, accommodation, textual materials, special cultural events, and weekend tours to local attractions
Scholarships are available upon application

Application deadline: May 1, 2017

Contact: Centre for East-West Relations
Email: nishan2017@163.com

