

Raimon Panikkar Symposium
Call for Papers
2022 AAR Annual Meeting, Denver, CO
November 18, 2022

The Society for Asian and Comparative Philosophy invites you to submit your paper proposal for the Raimon Panikkar Symposium, held in conjunction with the AAR Annual Meeting 2022.

This symposium is enabled by a private donor. The SACP has the honor of hosting a 3 hour-symposium on Friday afternoon (11/18), possibly, 3-6 p.m.

The 2022 symposium on Raimon Panikkar will be the tenth and the last symposium in conjunction with the AAR. To celebrate this milestone, the symposium will have no specific set theme but will be open to free-flowing logos (vāc) and pneuma (prāna). We shall brave the spiritual-intellectual challenges and have fun along the way in a truly Panikkarian spirit.

We invite papers on any aspect of Panikkar's thought, either in itself, or in dialogue with other philosophy, theology, and religion. The symposium will be an opportunity to take a fresh look at Raimon Panikkar's thought and celebrate his multifaceted achievements as a beautiful bouquet of wild flower.

Before we conclude the symposium, we will discuss the possibilities of continuing the Panikkar Symposium in different form(s) of incarnation—at different venues and times.

Please submit your

Paper proposal (your name; academic institution; e-mail address; the title of the paper; abstract of 200-250 words)
